Topmed cares about the environment and respects the priority many of our customers have to use environmentally responsible materials in the development of their products. As a trusted innovator in the disposable items industry, we have made the development of our green product line a priority.

We're committed to expanding quality material options for a broad range of applications, our environmentally friendly nonwoven products are used in a variety of industries including medical, agricultural, hygiene and spa beauty salon.

Topmed uses naturally occurring fibers to develop environmentally friendly nonwovens. While natural fibers are widely considered to be more expensive than synthetic fibers, our natural fiber nonwovens are very competitive with synthetic products. As governmental regulatory pressures concerning the environment increase, manufacturers need cost-effective solutions. There has never been a better time to consider switching from a synthetic nonwoven to a compostable or biodegradable environmentally friendly nonwoven.

The Topmed team is here to assist you with your nonwoven needs. Contact us to discuss how we can develop an environmentally friendly nonwoven products for your specific application.

PLA NONWOVEN FABRIC

PLA Non Woven Fabric is an environmentally friendly, 100% degradable non-woven fabric. Its main component is polylactic acid fiber, also known as corn fiber.

PLA Non Woven Fabric is also known as polylactic acid non woven fabric and corn fiber non woven fabric. PLA resin is a sustainable material, and PLA fiber is a compostable material derived from natural plant resources such as starch and sugar in corn. This material can be degraded quickly, and is environmentally friendly and non-toxic. Its waste combustion produces only carbon dioxide and water, which is greatly reduced by plant photosynthesis, and burns about a third as much heat as other polyester fibers. In addition, PLA materials are derived from natural plant resources, which also reduces our dependence on traditional oil and other resources.
